“good” vs. “well”

- Good= adjective (modifies noun)
  - Something that can be or seem good
  - Examples (identify the noun in each):
    - I have a very good dog.
    - I am having a good day.
    - I had a good weekend.
- Well= adverb (modifies verb)
  - An action can be done well; ***well can be an adjective when talking about health
  - Examples (identify the verb in each):
    - My dog is behaving very well.
    - Today is going well.
    - You cook very well.
    - I am not feeling very well.

Identify whether good/well is modifying a verb or noun then choose which sentence is correct!

- I had a good weekend.

- ~~• I had a well weekend.~~

• My exam went well.

• My exam went good.

- This lasagna is good!

- This lasagna is well!

- Did you do good on your exam?

- Did you do well on your exam?
